Cornerstone Gifts for the Communication Arts Complex

Since Muskingum's inception, the College has encouraged – even required – that our students develop strong communication skills. These well-honed communication skills have continued to play important roles in the lives of our alumni, long after they have left Muskingum's campus. Because of this impact, the College remains committed to ensuring that our legacy of effective instruction in the communicative arts continues for generations.

With this legacy in mind, Muskingum College dreamed—for many years—of constructing a new Communication Arts & Theatre Complex. And, for many years, we evaluated, considered and planned for this facility, awaiting the opportune time to begin construction. When three alumni families stepped forward with cornerstone gifts, Muskingum was able to begin moving this cherished vision toward reality. Because of the leadership of these three families—Harold '62 and Susanne Hussey '64 Burlingame, Anne Marshall Saunier '68, and J. Stark '63 and Sandra Wolfe '61 Thompson – Muskingum's dream is unfolding just west of Montgomery Hall. The cornerstone gifts of these alumni provided the very foundation upon which the Communication Arts Complex is based. Without their pioneering spirit and leadership example, the Muskingum of tomorrow would not be taking shape today.

East Facade

From the Montgomery arrival fountain this arched entrance provides access to the formal 250-seat theatre/recital hall, academic suites, an exhibit gallery, and the experimental theatre/rehearsal hall.

North Facade

From Cambridge Hall this terrace entrance provides access to WMCO, MCTV, the communication center, a library, a set design laboratory and additional academic space.

“This will make possible the exciting cross-fertilization and collaboration among disciplines that until now has been impossible.”

Assistant Professor of Theatre

West Facade

From the new principal parking corridor this entrance provides access to a student lounge, faculty offices, a costume design laboratory and additional performance-related facilities.

Meet the Communication Arts Complex

This new facility will unite our communication-related programs — speech, theatre, electronic journalism and graphic arts — under a single roof. The new building will house a 250-seat grand theatre/recital hall, our radio and television communication center, state-of-the-art instructional suites, an exhibit gallery, and an experimental theatre/rehearsal hall.

THE COMMUNICATION ARTS & THEATRE COMPLEX IS LOCATED BETWEEN MONTGOMERY HALL AND THE LIBRARY, COMPLETING A FOUNTAIN ARRIVAL PLAZA THAT WAS FIRST ENVISIONED IN THE 1920S CAMPUS MASTER PLAN. BECAUSE OF THE PROMINENT LOCATION OF THIS NEW FACILITY, IT HAS BEEN DESIGNED TO HAVE THREE PRIMARY ENTRANCES — ONE FACING THE MONTGOMERY ARRIVAL FOUNTAIN, ONE FACING CAMBRIDGE HALL AND ONE FACING THE NEW PRINCIPAL PARKING CORRIDOR.

Our architects, Bialosky & Associates from Cleveland, Ohio, have ensured that the new building will echo the architectural style of Montgomery Hall. The facade of the new facility reflects our historic tradition of educational excellence while the advanced technology housed within the facility demonstrates our commitment to delivering an incomparable education for generations to come.

The design of the 32,000 square foot Communication Arts Complex has been specifically developed to engender the collaboration, innovation, and communication that are hallmarks of a Muskingum education. And because speech remains a core component of the undergraduate curriculum, every Muskie will receive instruction in this facility.

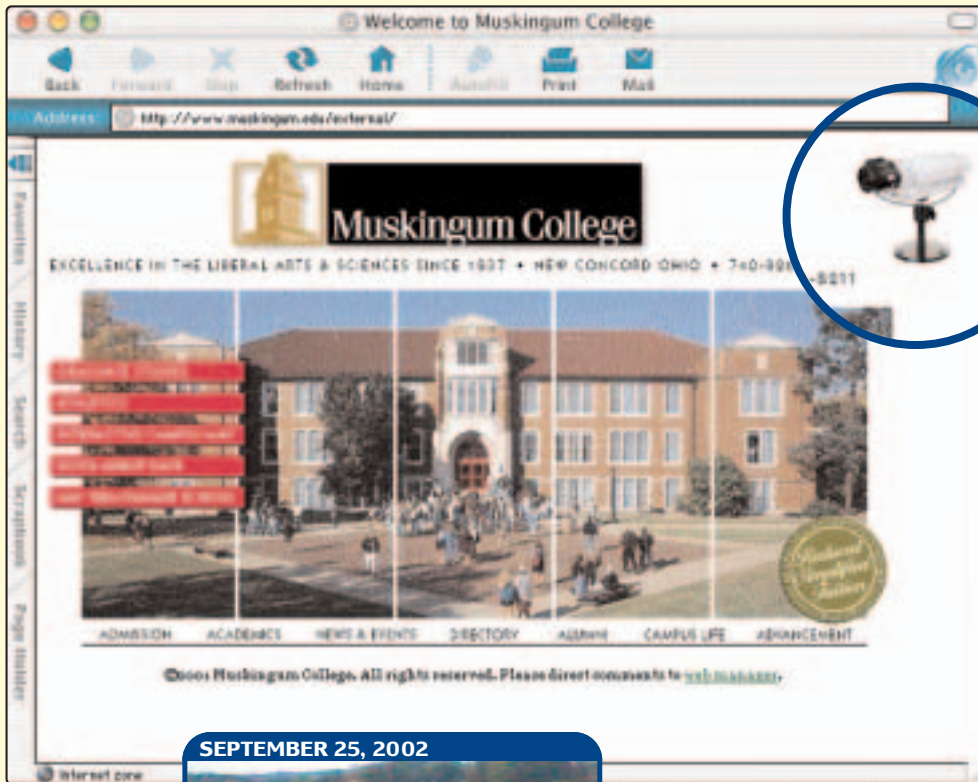

The generosity of many Muskingum alumni and friends has allowed us to begin construction on this new facility. The College has received, in cash and pledges, more than two-thirds of the building's $11.3 million cost. These gifts have enabled Muskingum to take important and tangible steps forward in the construction process. To date, the site for the new building has been cleared and the foundation has been dug. The building will be completed in the fall of 2003.

In the meantime, you can watch live progress on the building's construction on your computer at any time. Just log on to www.muskingum.edu and click on the icon to the right of "Muskingum College."

"This new facility will be a place of learning that perpetuates our educational heritage while enriching and expanding our educational mission."

Muskingum College Communication Arts Complex

Groundbreaking Ceremony April 20, 2002

In April 2002, Muskingum College broke ground for our much-anticipated Communication Arts & Theatre Complex. Trustees, alumni, students, faculty and staff joined with our neighbors and friends to open a new era of commitment to programmatic facilities for our students. During that spring day, the entire Muskingum College community celebrated the first tangible step toward our campus renaissance.

Muskingum launches a beam-signing tradition

At the April 2002 groundbreaking ceremony, Muskingum celebrated the historic moment by inviting alumni, students, guests, faculty and staff to sign an I-beam that will be used in the new Communication Arts Complex. This new tradition was so heralded that the College brought a second I-beam to campus for the June 2002 Alumni Weekend. At the two events, more than 1000 people signed a beam, helping create a living legacy for our new facility.

A City On A Hill

The air vibrates with the buzzing of crickets as I trudge up the steep hill to my dorm room in Memorial Hall. Grasping the black railing, now cracked and chipped with age, bubbles of dew pop beneath my grip. I feel the burn from tightened calf muscles crawl up my body and settle in my abs. It's humid and hot even though the sun is entirely hidden. Fog lingers in the rolling hills. As the first raindrops speckle the ground I enter the building.

It is my second day at Muskingum and the hallways and lobbies already feel like home. A gold key unlocks the enormous wooden door to my room; behind the door hide white-washed walls, red-orange tiles and a huge window. I kick off my shoes, dropping my backpack from my shoulders onto the rug. My roommate is half asleep with her nose in a textbook and a highlighter in her hand. I rouse her, saying, “I'm starving. Let's eat!”

In the Thomas Hall dining hall the room hums with sounds of laughter, talking and plate scraping. Football players with forearms bigger than my neck balance trays piled so high with food that they resemble a miniature Leaning Tower of Pisa.

That night, lying in my top bunk, I listen to the night sounds. The alarm over the side exit door buzzes with each after-hour entrance or exit. Cars race by honking; the drivers' friends whoop and holler back. Flushing toilets and late-night showers vibrate the walls. I listen to it all.

The next thing I know, the alarm is beeping and I'm pounding on the snooze button. Stumbling down from the wooden bunk, I excitedly prepare for the new day. I munch on a breakfast bar while heading for the quad, a huge patchwork quilt of bricks, sidewalk and grass surrounded by four red-roofed brick buildings.

People of many different races, cultures, backgrounds and lifestyles mingle here at the quad. It's the heart of campus life, full of students with book-laden backpacks slung over their shoulders. I don't know most of the people but faces are starting to look familiar. “Hello” is said more frequently and smiles are larger and less nervous.

I enter my classroom and find a seat by the window where it is cooler. My peers quietly laugh and talk as they get to know each other. This feels so much better than a high school classroom. Here we talk and have discussions like adults and take our everyday thinking to a much deeper level. It's not only interesting but motivating.

After class, a picture of Campus Lake and the bridge with the fountain spraying in the distance tempts my thoughts. I decide to take this route back to my dorm. Making my way past Brown Chapel, a cool breeze tangles my tresses, while fallen leaves dance around my feet. An oak tree sways its leafy arms in the wind. On one branch the green leaves have turned into rich reds tipped with yellow. A crispy leaf flutters to the ground as a preview for the coming autumn. I inhale deeply and wish it was already here.

Music thumps in my ears from a far-off fraternity. Canada geese honk. Trees shudder in the wind. I feel the now-familiar burn in my legs as I climb the hill. Pausing for a moment, I reflect on my new world. I am the first in my family to have a higher education, so I hadn't known what to expect from college life and didn't know whether I would like it. With each day I become more grateful and happier. Nestled in the tiny town of New Concord, Ohio there is a monument, a city on the hill, Muskingum College, and I love it!

At the time Ms. Reeves wrote this article, she was a freshman who had been on campus for just three months. Her essay has been edited to fit available space in the magazine. The full text is available upon request.

A Tribute to the Laytons

The history of the communicative arts at Muskingum was profoundly shaped by two long-time members of the faculty, Dr. Charles R. Layton and Mrs. Ferne P. Layton. Serving for more than forty years at Muskingum, this husband and wife team crafted the College's speech program into one of the strongest in the nation. Under Dr. Layton's leadership, Muskingum's debate program garnered a reputation for excellence, winning regional and national championships. For decades, the Laytons' commitment to excellence inspired and challenged students. This legacy remains an integral part of Muskingum's educational heritage.

"Honesty, decency, modesty, determination, scholarship, achievement, contributions to society for the benefit of all – these are the qualities and legacies embodied in the careers of Dr. & Mrs. Layton. Members of the Muskingum community are the heirs and beneficiaries. The Communication Arts Complex will be a constant expression of our gratitude and thanks to the Laytons."

Student Profile Jarrod Dalton '02

Speaking of his four years as a Muskingum student, Jarrod Dalton says, "At Muskingum, you get educated from all directions: classes, extracurricular activities, fellow students and unique situations all contribute to your growth. If you want to be successful and respected, you have to work for it."

This sound advice is founded upon Jarrod's successful experience in pursuing the demanding path that he created for himself at Muskingum. Jarrod took on a triple major: mathematics, computer science and business. His academic accomplishments brought him to the presidency of Kappa Mu Epsilon, the Math Honor Society. At graduation he was presented with Muskingum's highest academic honor, the Muskingum Senior Award in Mathematics.

At the same time he actively participated in campus life and student concerns. He was selected as student representative to the Board of Trustees and Alumni Council. He was also treasurer of the student senate, a 3 1/2 year member/officer of MACE and co-chair of his homecoming committee.

In his junior year Jarrod was selected by the NASA Glenn Research Center to be an intern in its prestigious Lewis Educational and Research Collaborative Internship Program (LERCIP).

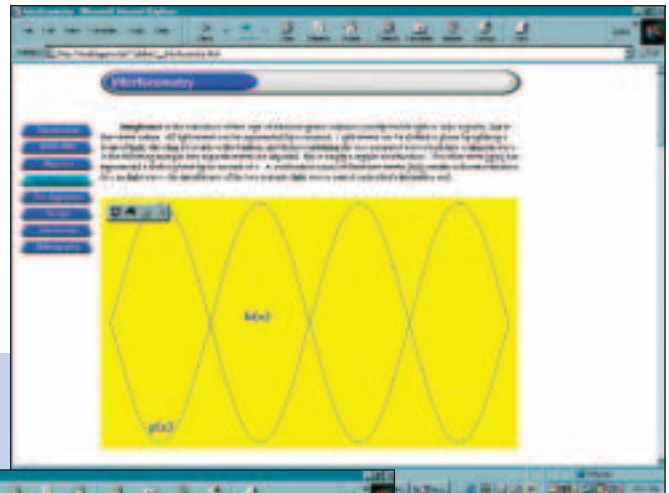

He worked under the supervision of Dr. R. Allen Wilkinson, research scientist in the Microgravity Fluid Physics Research Branch. His assignment: to calibrate a phase-shifting interferometer. Jarrod recalls, "When I arrived at NASA, I knew nothing about interferometry, not to mention how to calibrate a phase-shifting interferometer. This experience taught me never to back down from a challenge." He worked closely with Dr. Wilkinson and, by the end of the internship, Jarrod had successfully created an algorithm and the software to calibrate the interferometer. The resulting program continues to be used at NASA.

His Muskingum professors have been staunch supporters of Jarrod's efforts. Dr. Richard Daquila, chair of the mathematics and computer science department and Jarrod's academic advisor, knew "from day one" that Jarrod's intellect and talent would blossom at Muskingum. Dr. Ralph Hollingsworth, professor of computer science, agrees. "Even outside of class Jarrod asked those 'what if' questions that a professor loves to hear" ... "I think that one day Jarrod will surprise even himself with his success!"

Jarrod Dalton, '02, PhD candidate in statistics at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Distinguished Visiting Professor William T. Dentzer '51

Trustee and architect of the Depository Trust Company, William T. Dentzer Jr. '51, served as Muskingum College's Distinguished Visiting Professor of American Studies during a three-day period in the spring 2002 term. Under the leadership of Dr. William Kerrigan (history) and Dr. Richard Williamson (English), Mr. Dentzer's visit offered an exceptional learning experience for students of all disciplines.

After graduating from Muskingum, Mr. Dentzer held several key positions in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, focusing on international economic development. His final assignment in Washington D.C. was as Deputy U.S. Ambassador to the Organization of American States and the Inter-American Committee on the Alliance for Progress. After moving to New York, he became a state bank regulator under Governor Rockefeller and thereafter, the founding Chairman and CEO of The Depository Trust Company, the world's largest securities depository—holding more than $20 trillion in assets.

Mr. Dentzer's impressive career provided the backdrop for lectures in four classes—Topics in Economics, U.S. History Since 1877, Faith & Ethics and Topics in International Politics. Additionally, Mr. Dentzer delivered a public presentation to a standing room only audience of students, faculty and staff. During his public lecture, Mr. Dentzer explained the process that brought him from Muskingum College to the highest echelons of corporate America. Muskingum students responded to this lecture enthusiastically, asking targeted questions and seeking practical advice from Mr. Dentzer. Reflecting on Mr. Dentzer's visit President Anne Steele concluded, "The unique perspective that distinguished alumni like Bill add to Muskingum's academic program is unparalleled and it is this perspective that best enables our students to understand the lifelong effects of their educational program."

Malaku Bayen • Robert Hockman • Winifred Thompson

The Long Magenta Limelight Medical Missionary Heroes

Robert Hockman '28 was born in Chentu, Szechwan, China in 1906 to missionary parents. In 1925 the family fled China's First Civil War (Chiang Kai-Shek and the National Revolutionary Army). They then lived in a New Concord missionary home, thanks to Dr. Kelsey, Chair of Muskingum's Bible Department.

Bob became a Muskingum student; there he met the two people who would be his greatest influences: Winifred Thompson '29 from Cambridge, Ohio and Malaku Bayen '28 from Ethiopia.

Winifred Thompson was born in Cambridge in 1906; the family then moved to New Concord where her father had a pharmacy. A speech major at Muskingum, she studied with the Laytons. Soon after they met Bob and Winnie discovered they shared a childhood vocation for missionary work. Eventually they agreed that, once Bob had finished medical school, they would marry and then seek a missionary post in China.

Malaku Bayen was one of several Ethiopian students whose Muskingum education was sponsored by Emperor Haile Selassie. This international collaboration originated with Muskingum history professor Frank Ernest Work, who was acquainted with Selassie. One day Malaku invited Bob to his country. "We need missionaries as much as China." His comment was Bob's Macedonian call. The Hockmans were bound for Ethiopia.

Sponsored by the Foreign Mission Board of the United Presbyterian Church, they left for Addis Ababa in 1933. Bob practiced surgery and was director of the local hospital. Winnie assisted at the hospital and each week traveled by horseback to teach Sunday school at the leprosarium of the Sudan Interior Mission.

In 1935, the Italo-Ethiopian War broke out and Hockman was the first foreign physician to offer his services. He led Ethiopia's first-ever military medical unit which established a complete medical station on the battle front.

Winifred, six months pregnant, left for Egypt, intending to return to Addis Ababa and her husband in time for the baby's delivery. But Addis Ababa was invaded and neither Hockman was permitted to join the other. Their daughter, Ruth Winifred, was born in Egypt on October 30, the day after the birthday of her father.

While at the front, Bob became concerned about accidental deaths from unexploded Italian bombs. He taught himself how to defuse them and safely dismantled nearly 20 until, on December 12, a bomb exploded in his hands. He lived only long enough to request and hear the 23rd Psalm.

The young widow and her infant daughter returned to the United States and settled in Wheaton, IL with Bob's parents. Over the years Winifred spoke widely about her missionary experiences. She passed away in 2000.

This essay began as a research project by Melissa Lunn '03, who is assisting Dr. William Kerrigan, Asst. Professor of History, in his ongoing inquiry into The Long Magenta Line.

In Memoriam

With our deep respect and appreciation.

Muskingum College alumni and faculty continue to make their mark on the publishing world, with these most recent additions to the ever-growing Muskie reading list.

Robert G. Barrows '68. Albion Fellows Bacon: Indiana's Municipal Housekeeper.

Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 2001. ISBN 0253337747.

Dr. Robert G. Barrows, associate professor of history at Indiana University, has written an insightful biography of Albion Fellows Bacon, Indiana's foremost 'municipal housekeeper.' This Progressive Era term was given to the legions of "long unrecognized nineteenth-century women who, when their hearts were touched by a social problem, discovered in themselves hitherto unknown abilities for leadership." Albion Bacon was a typical midwestern middle-class housewife until 1892, when her concern for the welfare of her own children spurred her to work tirelessly for housing reform, child welfare, city planning and public health. Bacon and her fellow 'housekeepers' were an essential group of social activists, the women who shaped American civic structures that endure today.

David Budbill '62. Judevine (revised edition of the complete poems). White River Junction, VT: Chelsea Green Publishing Company, 1999. ISBN 1890132225; Moment to Moment: Poems of a Mountain Recluse Port Townsend, WA: Copper Canyon Press, 1999. ISBN 1556591330; Zen Mountains – Zen Streets: A Duet for Poet and Improvised Bass, double compact disc set. Live recording, Woodstock, VT:

Boxholder Records, 1999. www.david-budbill.com

David Budbill is the author of six books of poems, eight plays, a novel, a collection of short stories and a children's picture book. He is a commentator on National Public Radio's "All Things Considered," and a prolific writer of essays, introductions, speeches and book reviews. He is the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship, a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship and the Dorothy Canfield Fisher Award for Fiction.

Judevine is the name of an imaginary, impoverished northern Vermont town through which Budbill explores "the soul of New England" and creates a "song of the unsung...an anthem of the rural renaissance". The Chicago Sun Times, Los Angeles Daily News, Booklist and a score of literary journals have praised his "absolute clarity of expression" and his ability to "both inform and move" the reader. The poems have come to life on stage, as portions of the book have been produced as plays in more than twenty-five states.

Moment to Moment, Poems of a Mountain Recluse: The recluse of the title is a legendary Chinese hermit poet with a folksy, plain-speaking style. These poems have been described as "restorative" and able to "bring new insights and hope to our troubled world." The volume was a Booklist "Top Ten Books of Poetry, 1999-

2000" and was featured on National Public Radio's "The Writer's Almanac."

Zen Mountains – Zen Streets: A Duet for Poet and Improvised Bass: Budbill partners with jazz bassist William Parker to cross traditional boundaries between literary and musical forms of artistic expression. Together the poet and bassist draw on poems from Moment to Moment and in the duets Parker vividly expresses his virtuosity on the bass as well as with a multitude of non-Western instruments. This double set was recorded live on tour in Woodstock, Vermont. An audience member of the concert recalls, "This was a unique and transforming performance. The audience became deeply silent and rapt; it seemed to be a meditation with a hundred other people."

Philip Caldwell '40, Muskingum College trustee, featured in Harvard Business Review on Corporate Governance. Boston: Harvard Business School Press, 2000. ISBN 1578512379.

This classic business book is in its sixth printing and is considered an "essential reference" in corporate governance. It focuses on the policy and strategic challenges for leaders working with boards or dealing with governance issues. In the chapter "Changing Leaders: The Board's Role in CEO Succession," Philip Caldwell shares his views on this most vital and challenging element of corporate management in a roundtable discussion with his peers.

Muskingum College will print announcements or brief summaries of books published by and about alumni and faculty. Please send an autographed copy of the book and, if available, the press release to the Office of the President. Books will be donated to the Muskingum College Library.

During his distinguished career Mr. Caldwell has had a profound influence on seminal corporate issues such as CEO succession. He succeeded Henry Ford II as CEO of Ford Motor Company in 1979, becoming its first non-family leader. He then served as chairman and, after retirement, on the board of directors. He was the senior managing director of Lehman Brothers and director of the Mexico Fund, Chase Manhattan Corporation, American Guarantee & Liability Insurance Company, Digital Equipment, Federated Department Stores the Kellogg Company and others.

Kenneth Kettlewell '40. Our Town: New Concord, Ohio: The Birthplace of John Glenn.

Lima, OH: Express Press, 2001. ISBN 078802017.

In 1993 New Concord native Ken Kettlewell '40 began to write stories of life in New Concord. First published in the weekly newspaper The New Concord Leader, the stories were an immediate success. Readers eagerly anticipated every new story and their reputation spread far beyond the boundaries of the Village. Now his stories have been collected and expanded into an inviting volume. Rev. Kettlewell draws upon memories of longtime New Concord residents and the treasure trove of historic newspapers and photographs found in the Muskingum College archives. As a result, each well-crafted essay evokes images and memories that are dear to Muskies and Ohioans, delightful reading to lovers of such essays and inspiring discoveries for historians. The Reverend Kettlewell is now retired from a career of dedicated ministry in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan.

Louise F. Pence '65 with co-authors Mary K. Inman and Norma Lu Meehan. The Fowler Family Gets Dressed:

Frontier Paper Dolls of the Old Northwest Territory

Lubbock: Texas Tech University Press, 2000. ISBN 0896724344.

Throughout the 1790s The Northwest Territory, which later yielded the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and part of Minnesota, was the first American frontier west of the Appalachians. The rich land and room for opportunity drew many adventurous middle-class settlers across the mountains.

The Fowler Family provides a unique guide to the costumes and customs of the eighteenth century Ohio Country by re-enacting a day in the life of the fictitious Fowler family. Museum-quality paper dolls and their historically authentic clothing accompany the stories contained in this book. The result is a remarkable portrait of the fascinating cultural history of the Ohio Country in 1790. The authors' extensive research included many unusual sources including frontier diaries, period newspapers and travelers' descriptions. This is an essential work for students, educators and history re-enactors.

Pence and Inman make young audience presentations in period costume for events at many venues including schools, museums and bookstores.

Betty Purviance Ward '66 with co-author Nancy N. Schiffer. Weller, Roseville and related Zanesville Art Pottery and Tiles.

Atglen, PA: Schiffer Publishing Ltd., 2000. ISBN 0764311492.

Zanesville, Ohio is known throughout the world as the originator and leading producer of collectible art pottery and art tiles in the late nineteenth and mid-twentieth century. The names of Roseville and Weller exemplify the world of art pottery, while The American Encaustic Tiling Company and The Mosaic Tile Company, both international gold medal winners, were the leading forces behind the creation of art tile.

Ward and Schiller have written a comprehensive study of these American art forms, encompassing familiar historical pieces as well as rarely-seen examples of unique designs and shapes, many of which are now in private collections. The book provides a wealth of information on the companies, shapes, glaze lines and current market values of these coveted pieces. Anyone who collects, owns or simply admires Zanesville pottery will enjoy the wonderfully detailed photographs of this illustrated guide. Collectors will find it an indispensable reference in their quests for new discoveries.

Both authors are natives of the Zanesville area. Ward's parents, Evan and Louise Purviance, were one of the original collector-dealers of Zanesville pottery. For decades, their White Pillars Antique Shop was a destination on the itineraries of visiting collectors and dealers.

Graduate Commencement May 4, 2002

On May 4th, one of Ohio's most distinguished educators, Dr. Robert Hite, addressed the 105 graduates of Muskingum's Master of Arts in Education program. As the Executive Director of the Center for the Teaching Profession at the Ohio Department of Education, Dr. Hite has been a pioneering influence in the development of dynamic new teacher education strategies. His provocative remarks—reflecting his belief in the strong state of the teaching profession—inspired and encouraged the members of Muskingum's 10th Master of Arts in Education class.

Muskingum unveils a new graduate degree

In June 2002 Muskingum received approval from the last of our three accrediting bodies, allowing the College to offer a new graduate degree—a Master of Arts in Teaching (M.A.T.). This new degree responds to a regional and statewide need for qualified teachers by enabling college-educated individuals—seeking to change careers by moving into the teaching profession—to acquire their initial licenses. The program offers licensure in Early Childhood, Middle Childhood, Adolescent and Young Adult, and Intervention Specialist: Mild to Moderate.

For information regarding this exciting new graduate program, contact Muskingum's Office of Graduate and Continuing Studies at 740/826-8038.

Shorrock is appointed Vice President for Institutional Advancement

In July 2002, John Shorrock joined the Muskingum College community as Vice President for Institutional Advancement. Dr. Shorrock holds a baccalaureate degree from Tusculum College, a master's degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University and a doctoral degree from West Virginia University. With more than 25 years of fundraising experience at academic institutions including Bradley University, Wittenberg University and Lafayette College, Dr. Shorrock brings to Muskingum a wealth of talent and knowledge about the fields of development and alumni relations. "John's gifts in the advancement arena will help strengthen Muskingum College's curricular and co-curricular programs for decades to come," noted President Anne Steele.

Undergraduate Commencement

May 11, 2002

On May 11 the Muskingum community celebrated the accomplishments of the Class of 2002 in a poignant graduation ceremony. For the College's 157th commencement exercises, three speakers reflected upon the important role that "community" plays in shaping us all. Representing the community of family was José C. Feliciano, Esquire—parent of graduating senior José Feliciano. Representing local communities was The Honorable R. Gregory Adams '81 —alumnus and

Mayor of the Village of New Concord. Representing the alumni community was Anne Marshall Saunier '68 — alumna and trustee. The speakers each encouraged the graduates to continue to rely upon their respective communities as they pursued new personal and professional achievements. As the Class of 2002 made its transition from students to alumni, the words of the speakers were both powerful and inspirational.

Baccalaureate 2002

Willie Ruff —esteemed musician and Professor of Music at Yale University—delivered one of the most innovative baccalaureate sermons ever held on the Muskingum campus. Professor Ruff's remarks educated and inspired the Muskingum community regarding the accomplishments of one of our most famous alumni—Reverend William Rainey Harper, founder of the University of Chicago. Professor Ruff's extraordinary musical accompaniment to his address—solo singing and unaccompanied bass—left the audience spellbound. Professor Ruff concluded this unforgettable sermon by inviting an enthusiastic congregation to join in the singing of "Amazing Grace." Graduating seniors and their families, as well as Muskingum faculty and staff, universally praised this unique baccalaureate service.

Homecoming Weekend 2001

On a beautiful autumn weekend hundreds of alumni returned to campus to rekindle friendships, support our athletic program and celebrate Muskingum's bright future. The festivities began with the traditional parade—featuring Homecoming Queen Kathleen Ryder '03, Homecoming King Eric DaRif '03, dozens of student organizations and social clubs, as well as the Muskingum College Board of Trustees. The student leadership necessary to orchestrate a parade of this caliber and magnitude was provided by Jarrod Dalton '02, Jamie Kocinski '02 and Levi Shegog '04.

During homecoming weekend Muskingum pays tribute to its athletic luminaries by inducting new members to the Hall of Fame. The 2001 inductees were Craig Hoitink '94, John Hoopingarner '76 and Debra Lancashire '85. The many achievements of these three individuals continue to bring honor to our athletic program.

Southeastern Ohio Symphony Orchestra garners national recognition from ASCAP

Dr. Laura E. Schumann,
Music Director and Conductor

The Southeast Ohio Symphony Orchestra (SEOSO) won third place in the prestigious annual program Awards for Adventurous Programming that is sponsored by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) and the American Symphony Orchestra League (ASOL). Both organizations hold prominent positions in the world of concert music. In winning the award SEOSO competed with dozens of other orchestras, most with budgets at least three times larger.

For well over twenty-five years SEOSO has been a vital cultural force throughout Southeastern Ohio. SEOSO is in residence at Muskingum College, yet is a community orchestra. Because of this and because of SEOSO's commitment to educational outreach, our region has widespread access to and an abiding appreciation for concert music.

Alumni Weekend

On June 14-15, 2002, more than 525 alumni and guests gathered on campus to rekindle friendships, revisit memories and celebrate the remarkable link between generations of Muskies.

Golden Reunion Class

The Class of 1952 celebrated its golden anniversary during this reunion weekend. This class was renowned at Muskingum for its distinctive sense of community and service. Fifty years later, these attributes remain the hallmarks of this class. For decades, the Class of 1952 generously supported Muskingum College and—in recognition of their special anniversary—the class members' sense of service to their alma mater was again reflected in their gift of $420,000. Chairs Celia Hill Dentzer and Richard M. Ferguson, and trustees Richard O. Johnson and R. William Geyer orchestrated an extraordinary program for their classmates and their College.

Distinguished Service Awards

Muskingum College celebrated the many achievements of the Long Magenta Line with the Alumni Council's conferral of Distinguished Service Awards upon three remarkable Muskies: Dr. Elizabeth Leitch Bonkowsky '62—a diplomat and public affairs officer at the American Consulate in Leipzig, Germany, who has been twice honored by the U.S. Department of State for her contributions toward peace in Albania, Bosnia and the Kosovo region; trustee Robert W. Patin '64—Chief Executive Officer of Life and Group Operations for CNA and former President of Veggie Tales; and The Reverend Dr. Thomas K. Tewell '70—senior pastor at the renowned Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City.

Worship Service

Reunion weekend traditionally ends with the alumni worship service at Brown Chapel. Trustee and member of the 50th reunion class, R. William Geyer, Esquire, delivered the sermon, remarking “the blessings of God on this place seem to be apparent.” The liturgy was delivered by Sandra Harbaugh Scholl '72 a member of the 25th reunion class. And, as always, the alumni choir—under the direction of Robert Owen Jones '63—provided a magnificent musical accompaniment to the inspirational worship service.

Klontz and Layman among elite OAC scholar-athletes

Ashley Layman, volleyball and Adam Klontz, baseball, 2002 graduating seniors at Muskingum, were awarded the prestigious Ohio Athletic Conference Clyde A. Lamb Awards for 2001-2. This award is the highest distinction that the OAC offers.

Lamb Award winners are a select group of student-athlete seniors who have been nominated according to three criteria that represent the highest standards in collegiate athletics: a GPA of minimum 3.0, at least two years' participation in an OAC-sponsored sport, and sportsmanlike conduct in a manner that has brought credit to the student-athlete and his/her college.

Layman, a middle hitter, was a double major in psychology and business and a double minor in Spanish and economics. Layman was in the top 5% of her graduating class at Muskingum. She was a two-time Academic All-OAC first team, a 2001 Verizon Academic All-American, a two-time All-OAC team member and holds the Muskingum record for blocks in a single season, career blocks and career kills.

Klontz, an outfielder, earned four varsity letters while pursuing a double major in accounting and business. He was on the Muskingum Dean's List six times. He was a two-time Academic All-OAC team member and was co-captain of his team during the second year.

Ashley Layman and Adam Klontz were awarded the prestigious Ohio Athletic Conference Clyde A. Lamb Awards for 2001-2.

Softball champions capture fifth straight OAC title, breaking two national records

In yet another stellar season for Muskingum College's softball team, the Muskies won their fifth consecutive OAC title and finished the season ranked eighth in the country. The athletes broke two national records, blasting through 48 home runs in one season and extending their own winning streak record with 35 games.

Mandy Carnes, junior first base player, once again brought distinction to her team and to Muskingum. This extraordinary ball player broke two NCAA Division III records in 2002, achieving an unprecedented 24 home runs in one season and a career total of 46.

In her first year on the team Katie Herbst was chosen OAC Rookie of the Year, OAC John Wells Pitcher of the Year and first teams All-OAC and All-Central Region.

First team All-OAC honors were earned by Shelli Manson and second team All-OAC honorees were Tami Anglin, Shelly DeLucas, Jennifer Shay and Erin Zupko. Team members who were selected for the OAC tournament were Megan Monsman, Nicole Blubaugh, Carnes, Herbst and DeLucas. Morgan Martin, Carnes, DeLucas, Zupko and Monsman were invited to the NCAA Regional All-Tournament.

Coach Donna Newberry surpassed her 600-career win in 2002, an achievement attained by only two other NCAA Division III coaches. She is now ranked #2 in the country for Division III. A pioneer of fastball, Newberry has helped to bring the sport and her Muskingum teams to national prominence. In 2001 her players reached first place nationally, becoming Muskingum's first-ever National Champions.

During her 28-year Muskingum coaching career Newberry's prodigious talent has been frequently recognized by her peers. She was National Softball Coach of the Year (2001), Womens' Sports Foundation National Coach of the Year (2000), has appeared three times at the World Series and is a ten-time OAC Softball Coach of the Year.

- Mandy Carnes is top hitter in the nation and Muskingum's first three-time All-American.

Coach Jim Burson reaches career milestone: 500 wins

On Saturday, January 5, 2002 at 4:37 p.m. the final seconds ticked off the clock to a 77-76 Muskie win over Otterbein. With the game's closing buzzer head coach Dr. Jim Burson became the newest member of the 500 career win club in NCAA basketball. Only one other OAC coach enjoys this honor and the Fighting Muskies had just defeated his team.

"We're proud that all 500 of Coach Burson's career wins were with Muskingum. His great coaching skills are matched by his talents as an educator who changes the lives of young people," said President Anne Steele. "The scope of his success is integral to Muskingum's athletic tradition."

Said Burson, "Reaching 500 wins is the result of having a lot of good players, special assistant coaches and tremendous fans." Burson has been at Muskingum since 1967. His teams have won six OAC championships and played in five NCAA tournaments. Among his players have been seven All-American and 61 All-Ohio Athletic Conference players.

His family has always been his greatest support. "Without them, I would never have stayed in coaching as long as I have. We all were involved in basketball: my son Jay who played at OSU, my daughter Jamie who was a cheerleader and my wife Sonie, who was my biggest supporter for 35 years."

Burson has long dedicated his talent and leadership abilities to the sport of basketball. He coached at the 1988 Olympic Sports Festival and helped select the 1984 Olympic Team that won the gold medal under legendary coach Bob Knight.

Knight says, "Anyone to have been associated with Jim Burson surely judges the opportunity as a rare privilege from one of the leaders in the coaching profession."

"Jim is one of the truly outstanding gentlemen in our profession," said Huggins, Cincinnati coach and fellow member of the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

OAC Commissioner Tim Gleason added, "Jim Burson exemplifies what college athletics are supposed to be. The young people he teaches will be better off 20 years from now because he is part of their lives today."

Outstanding NCAA championship performance earns top 20 ranking for Muskie golfers

The Muskingum men's golf team concluded its season ranked 14th in the nation – the top 5% - following brilliant individual and team performances during the NCAA Division III Championship Golf Tournament. Ranked 25th heading into the tournament, this gave the Muskie golfers an extraordinary finale to a tremendously successful golf season.

Twenty-three of the approximately 250 Division III teams in the country won the right to participate in the 2002 NCAA championship. The four-day competition was played on the challenging 'links-style' Firethorn Golf Course in Lincoln, Nebraska. One hundred twenty participants played seventy-two holes, eighteen per day.

Adam Lescalleet, junior, placed third nationally by finishing at 13-over par 284. This was just four strokes shy of medalist honors. Once again this remarkable athlete was named NCAA All-American.

Ryan Lescalleet, twin brother of Adam, received his first All-American title when he won honorable mention at the close of the tournament.

This was the first season with the team for Head Coach Dave Kirby, who said, "It was an exciting week for us and I know that we'll draw upon our experiences there to guide us in the future."

President Steele appointed to NCAA committee

President Anne C. Steele was recently designated as the presidential representative to the NCAA Division III Committee on Membership. President Steele will serve a term of three years during which time her work will focus upon developing new guidelines and procedures for institutions seeking both provisional and full membership status for NCAA Division III competition. "This appointment helps enhance the visibility of the Muskingum College athletic program and, simultaneously, ensures that athletic competition remains an important component of our educational program," remarked Dr. Steele.
